

WHAT IS CLAIMED IS:

1. A portable keyboard and mouse or laptop workstation comprising:

- a solid wood tray with the top surface adapted by routing out .25" to .50" deep recessed areas to accommodate a keyboard and mouse or laptop computer, said wood tray having rounded edges on all top outer edges and inner edges;
- a malleable interchangeable cushion substantially the shape and size of the solid wood tray, said interchangeable cushion to have a liner, said interchangeable cushion to have a cotton outer shell with printed pattern, said interchangeable cushion can be removed and replaced with another outer shell with a different printed pattern, said interchangeable cushion to be filled a malleable material that can be adjusted for the user specific optimum tilt and comfort by form fitting to the users lap without the need to remove the equipment, disassemble the workstation or adding and/or subtracting components such as additional pieces, wedges, clamps, cables, stands, tripods or other mounting devices;
- a connection of the malleable interchangeable cushion to the back of the wood tray by attaching reusable hook and loop fastening material, said material to be sewn to the malleable interchangeable cushion and glued to the back top of the wood tray.